

NORTH CAROLINA
COMMUNITY FOUNDATION

For immediate release: May 1, 2018

Duke promoted to senior communications specialist at NC Community Foundation

RALEIGH – Louis M. Duke has been promoted to senior communications specialist at the North Carolina Community Foundation in Raleigh. He is a member of the communications and marketing department of the statewide community foundation.

In his role as senior communications specialist, Duke manages external communications for NCCF's statewide affiliate network and supports digital and social communications, public relations and marketing. He has been with the Foundation for nearly three years.

The Reidsville native is a 2015 graduate of Campbell University, where he received a bachelor of arts degree in communications studies.

Noel McLaughlin, NCCF's director of communications and marketing, said the Foundation was excited to promote Duke. "Louis is an asset to NCCF," she said. "He has made so many contributions to our department and to the entire organization in his short time here."

About the North Carolina Community Foundation

The NCCF is the single statewide community foundation serving North Carolina and has administered more than $130 million in grants since its inception in 1988. With nearly $247 million in assets, NCCF sustains 1,200 endowments established to provide long-term support of a broad range of community needs, nonprofit organizations, institutions and scholarships. The NCCF partners with a network of affiliate foundations to provide local resource allocation and community assistance across the state. An important component of NCCF's mission is to ensure that rural philanthropy has a voice at local, regional and national levels.

MORE

For more information, visit nccommunityfoundation.org, like us on Facebook and follow us on LinkedIn and Twitter @NCCF.

END

News media contact:

Noel McLaughlin, Director of Communications and Marketing 919-256-6901
nmclaughlin@nccommunityfoundation.org