FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Raleigh, N.C. – PLM Families Together, Inc., a 35-year-old nonprofit organization that moves families in Wake County from homelessness to independence, is pleased to announce the selection of Lisa A. Rowe as its new Executive Director. Previously, Rowe was director of the CapitalCare Collaborative. She brings to her new role extensive leadership experience that has included Wake Crisis Cooperative, Habitat for Humanity International, Transom Development and Wake County Human Services.

Rowe has been asked by the Board of Directors to focus on leading the organization through the next steps in its multi-year strategic plan which includes partnering with donors and sister organizations to better serve the community's homeless and at-risk populations. She will begin on May 4th.

"I am excited about taking PLM Families Together to the next level," says Rowe. "It has a strong, reputation as an effective, industry-leading organization, and I look forward to growing our impact on this community."

About PLM Families Together:

PLM Families Together is a 501 (c)(3) nonprofit organization dedicated to moving Wake County families from homelessness to stable homes through mentoring, housing support and connecting to community resources. Last year, it moved 81 families into permanent housing – lifting on average one family every 4.5 days out of homelessness.
