

The Ashe County Outdoor Recreation Community Survey is designed to capture the opinions of people living and working in the Ashe County community around the subject of outdoor recreation and its impacts on our local economy. From natural resources like the New River and our miles of trails to the work of businesses small and large that support local and tourist recreation alike, the outdoors are a valuable part of Ashe County's economic makeup. The information gathered in this survey will help guide our local leaders to strengthen and support our local assets and expand associated economic opportunities. We desire your input on the current state of Ashe County's outdoor economies, as well as your thoughts on where the future should take us.

This survey was created by the NC Department of Commerce's Main Street & Rural Planning team as part of the Creating Outdoor Recreation Economies (CORE) Program. All information is collected anonymously and personally identifiable data will not be included in the final report. A link to the Survey can be found on both the Planning and Public Notices Webpages.
