Notes

A spin-out from the Washington state-based industrial company Fortive is putting its new global headquarters in Raleigh — though the number of jobs the company brings here will be relatively small. The new company, called Vontier, will operate in the transportation and mobility markets and have products related to fueling technology, fleet management data and traffic solutions, according to a release sent out by Fortive. Brands owned by the company include, Gilbarco Veeder-Root, Matco Tools and Teletrac Navman. The company will have around 8,400 employees worldwide, Fortive said. However, the actual headcount in Raleigh will be much smaller — just around 100 executives and members of the management team, a spokeswoman for Vontier told The News & Observer. "We anticipate approximately 100 executive, professional, and administrative corporate employees will be located in Vontier's Raleigh headquarters," Sabrina Kropp, vice president of communications at Vontier, said in an email. The company revealed in the filing that its address will be 5420 Wade Park Blvd. in Raleigh. That would put its headquarters in the Wade Office Park development near PNC Arena. Other: Test & Manufacturing Equipment Wholesaler, Manufacturing	Expanding	5	$0	06/05/2020

Notes

A Cary company is hauling in the funding and seeing an acceleration in business during the pandemic. The year started strong at Atmospheric Plasma Solutions (APS) with an influx of $3.2 million when the company closed a convertible note round in early 2020, and that was just the beginning. On Thursday the Cary company, which specializes in coating removals, closed on $3.5 million in financing with an existing investor. Astolfi said APS had revenues north of $1 million in 2019 and expects to grow those numbers “multi-fold” in 2020. Including four recently added positions and a couple of contractors, the company has 16 employees and expects to add three to five more employees by the end of the year. The positions are primarily for engineering roles, field and product support, and research scientists.

Notes

Lenovo, the Chinese computer maker announced it would be basing what it's calling the "Think IoT Return to Work Solutions" business at its Triangle operation in Morrisville. Gordon, who relocated from Boston to Research Triangle Park to launch the new division, calls it the next logical step for a "great products company," one that will enable Lenovo to provide "end-to-end solutions" that could keep employees safer. The unit will start off with less than 100 employees globally. Gordon wouldn't say how many of those employees will be in the Triangle, but he does say several Lenovo employees have relocated to the region to help build the business.

Notes

Nearly two years after Hitachi announced plans to acquire 80 percent of ABB's Power Grids unit in an $11 billion deal, the transaction has closed – giving Raleigh yet another growing regional headquarters operation. The resulting company, dubbed a joint venture, will keep its headquarters at North Carolina State University's Centennial Campus. In an interview, Yoann Barbosa, interim site lead and country finance director for Power Grids, said the new Hitachi ABB Power Grids business is already investing in Raleigh, where it also houses its power grids research and development center. The unit is building a “new customer experience center,” expanding into the second floor of its current building in Centennial Campus. The 3,000-square-foot center, expected to be complete this fall, will host demos “and be able to show customers some of the solutions we sell,” she said. Right now, the unit has 450 Raleigh employees, including most of the 150 new positions the company created for the new venture. ABB (NYSE: ABB) continues to have its North American headquarters in Cary.

Other: TBD	Expanding	1,000	$0	07/21/2020

Notes

After two years of anticipation, e-commerce giant Amazon says it is now hiring for its massive distribution center in Garner – with plans to create 1,000 more jobs than initially anticipated. The job count has swelled from 2,000 to more than 3,000, according to the company. The facility – 2.6 million square feet at the site of what used to be the ConAgra plant on Jones Sausage Road – will pack and ship products to customers across the region, from household goods to electronics. The opening of the site, scheduled for ahead of the 2020 holiday season, was initially delayed due to roadwork. The town council recently approved a change to its special-use permit to allow hiring to happen faster – and before the roadwork is complete.

A South Korean company bringing its first U.S. manufacturing facility to Garner boasts that it makes clothing for one out of every three Americans. Hansae Co., an apparel company, will produce personal protective equipment (PPE), the town announced Monday. The facility will focus on surgical masks with plans to "expand to other products in the future depending on the market conditions," the release said. Hansae Co. will initially hire up to 10 employees and invest $2 million in the new location, the town said. The company will be located at the Greenfield North Business Park at the intersection of U.S. Business Highway 70 and Interstate 40.

Formed in 2018 and backed by three private equity firms, insightsoftware continues to grow globally and hire locally. The Raleigh-based fintech firm announced Thursday the acquisition of Viareport, a financial software provider based in France. The acquisition is the 14th it has made since being formed in 2018. And jobs continue to be added in Raleigh where its headquarters are located. Plans continue to increase its local headcount by 55% this year to nearly 260, a spokesperson for the company says. The expanding headquarters was opened last year.

The “new normal” – working from home instead of commuting to an office park – was really the “old normal” for Raleigh-based Persistence AI, a startup planning to hire hundreds of remote gig-workers in the coming months, according to its CEO. Pre-pandemic, the company's 12 full-time workers were already working remotely, though the firm did have space at both HQ Raleigh (now called Raleigh Founded) and WeWork, said CEO Ed Holloway. The next quarter the plan is to sign on about 135 new agents. “In 2021, our goal is about 40 to 50 new agents every month that we get onboarded, trained and onto our platform,” Holloway said.

Robinson Bradshaw is pleased to announce the opening of its Raleigh office. This is the firm's fourth office in the Carolinas; other locations include Charlotte and Chapel Hill, North Carolina, and Rock Hill, South Carolina. "Opening a Raleigh office was a logical next step, and we are excited it has come to fruition. We've always had a methodical approach to growth, in terms of footprint and headcount," said Managing Partner Allen Robertson. "It has never been our goal to have the most offices or be the largest firm. Instead, our growth is fueled by clients' needs – and that strategy has worked for us." "We feel fortunate to have opened a new office and added a total of 12 new lawyers during this challenging year. The timing may seem unusual, but our stability through good times and challenging times allows us to stay focused on long-term goals," said Robertson.

Garner Announced as Location for New VA Clinic: "The U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) has announced that it recently accepted an offer to lease 244,860 square feet of space for a new outpatient multi-specialty clinic in the Town of Garner. The site for the new construction is approximately 17 acres located on the west side of N.C. 50 between Rand Road and Arbor Greene Drive. The real property investment amount for the project is estimated to be about $100 million. "The Durham VA Health Care System values our local community partners' efforts in helping us to keep the nation's promise to our veterans," said DVAHCS Executive Director Paul Crews. "The new outpatient facility will employ nearly 400 VA employees, ranging from administrative support to health-care providers. It will offer primary care and mental-health services to nearly 25,000 veterans annually from Wake County and surrounding areas." Construction has yet to begin on the site, and no timeline has yet been finalized with the town. A joint venture, Atriax/PPGG JV of Hickory, is the developer and lessor on the project.

More than a year after JPMorgan Chase opened its first North Carolina retail branch in Chapel Hill, the Triangle rollout the New York banking giant has been promising is now underway. The bank's second Triangle branch opened this week in Garner. The plan is to open three other locations by mid-March – Midtown Raleigh, 9th Street in Durham and Brier Creek. The rollout will mean jobs. Already, JPMorgan has about 350 employees in North Carolina, she said. And many of those are new-to-Chase. "As I get all my branches open, we'll bring 150 to 180 new jobs here in just the Triangle," she said. The Midtown Raleigh and Durham branches are expected to open in January. So far, the bank has filed plans to open 22 branches across the state. Of those, 10 are in the Triangle.
