Software/Information Technology	Expanding	10	$0	03/15/2019

Notes

Morrisville-based communications and compliance firm Issuer Direct Corporation has tapped downtown Raleigh for its new headquarters.

The company is moving its corporate offices to a 10,000-square-foot space at downtown Raleigh's One Glenwood building.

Issuer Direct has been steadily growing - both organically and through acquisitions - filling its Morrisville office to capacity. With its 90-person headcount expected to reach triple digits by year-end, Issuer Direct has been assessing its options for eight months, says CEO Brian Balbirnie.

Chiesi USA

Industry	New/Expanding	New Jobs	Investment	Date Submitted
Advanced Manufacturing, Biotechnology/Pharmaceuticals	Expanding	150	$0	03/18/2019

Notes

Chiesi's recent move to a new headquarters in Cary was to accommodate that growth but the company's CEO expects it will outgrow the space within a handful of years.

This month, Chiesi USA and took over the fifth and sixth floors of Regency Woods II, a corporate office building in Cary. Prior to the move, the company occupied space off Crescent Green also in Cary, with staff spread across separate offices.

According to McBean, the company currently employs 300, with 147 physically located in the Triangle headquarters. The rest work in the field throughout the country. He said the new building has the potential to house about 300, leaving room for the company to almost double the workforce — an event McBean expects to happen in a short time.

Marvell Technology

Software/Information Technology	New	110	$0	03/20/2019

Notes

Quietly, publicly traded semiconductor firm Marvell Technology (Nasdaq; MRVL) is building a research and development team in the Triangle.

Right now, the "center" is a local team of about 40, working from temporary locations. But soon, aided by the demand from the 5G shift, the company could be at up to 150 employees at the new Triangle research center, says Raghiv Hussain, executive vice president and chief strategy officer.

Bluebird Bio

Industry	New/Expanding	New Jobs	Investment	Date Submitted
Advanced Manufacturing, Biotechnology/Pharmaceuticals	Expanding	50	$0	03/25/2019

Notes

On Friday, Bluebird (Nasdaq: BLUE) executives – along with Gov. Roy Cooper and Secretary of Commerce Tony Copeland – officially opened the 125,000-square-foot manufacturing facility in Durham. The company, which is developing a pipeline of gene therapy products for the treatment of genetic diseases and cancer, purchased the facility in late 2017 for $11.7 million

CEO Nick Leschly said Bluebird Bio has hired about 50 for the site. As operations ramp up, he expects that number to expand to at least 70 by the end of the year. He said the company has already invested $80 million into operations at the site – which he expects to continue growing.

Zaloni

Industry	New/Expanding	New Jobs	Investment	Date Submitted
Software/Information Technology	Expanding	20	$0	03/26/2019

Notes

A Durham analytics management company, whose customers include Verizon and UnitedHealth Group, has a new headquarters at Research Triangle Park's Frontier campus.

And Zaloni, led by CEO Ben Sharma, is ready to add to its growing team.

The new space – more than 10,000-square-feet at the 600 Frontier building – has room to grow, says Sharma in an interview.

Zaloni has more than 45 people in Durham, part of a global headcount of 180. And it plans to hire “15 to 20” additional local employees this year – in everything from engineering to sales to marketing roles, he says.

HZO

Industry	New/Expanding	New Jobs	Investment	Date Submitted
Advanced Manufacturing	New	500	$0	03/26/2019

Notes

A manufacturer whose waterproofing technology is already featured on big name products from brands such as Nike, Motorola and Dell is relocating its headquarters from Salt Lake City, Utah to Morrisville – a move that could mean 500 jobs in the next four years.

Initially, it means Utah's HZO will be relocating 50 jobs to the new Morrisville facility.

And it's the area's rich engineering talent pool that won HZO's interest over other locations on the east coast, he says.

Spirit Airlines

Notes

-T.A. Loving Company, a longstanding leader in commercial construction throughout the southeast, announced today the opening of the new office in downtown Raleigh at 3600 Glenwood Avenue. The new office will be a hub for the company's expanding portfolio of work throughout the Triangle region. Vice President Ken Gerrard will run day-to-day operations and expand staff over the coming year.

The new office is scheduled to open in late April and will include several new hires. The new positions will include a marketing coordinator, project managers, administrative personnel, estimators and a preconstruction leader.

Spark Power

Industry	New/Expanding	New Jobs	Investment	Date Submitted
Smart Grid, Other: Headquarters	New	0	$0	04/02/2019

Notes

Spark has now established its new U.S. Corporate Head Office in Raleigh, NC. The facility will also be home to a new operating branch offering high and low voltage technical services in the region. Under the leadership of a recently hired branch manager, operational ramp-up is actively underway and business development activities are being conducted from the location. "We chose Raleigh as the location for our U.S. Corporate Head Office because of its reputation for welcoming innovation, proximity to an established and growing industrial, commercial, and institutional base, the presence of key OEM's in the area, and its central location on the eastern seaboard," said Richard Jackson, COO of Spark Power. "We view Raleigh as the ideal gateway to begin accessing a broader array of opportunities across the southeastern U.S. including both regular technical service work, as well as storm recovery initiatives."

Biotechnology/Pharmaceuticals	Expanding	25	$0	04/04/2019

Notes

The privately held company intends to double its current office footprint in Raleigh, N.C., to accommodate immediate and future growth. “The expanded office in Raleigh and the new office in San Francisco will allow us to continue to accommodate our ever-expanding workforce,” said Timothy Schroeder, chief executive officer of CTI. Up to 50 jobs are expected to be created between the two locations in the next several years, with the potential for more, I was told.

HemoSonics

Industry	New/Expanding	New Jobs	Investment	Date Submitted
Advanced Manufacturing, Biotechnology/Pharmaceuticals	Expanding	150	$10,000,000	04/04/2019

Notes

A recent nod from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has one Virginia company eyeing big expansion in the Triangle, looking to quadruple its headcount and invest $10 million in the coming years. To fill that new market – and subsequent orders – Fischer said the company is looking to bolster its headcount and consolidate its Triangle operations. Currently, the company maintains an R&D facility in downtown Durham, and a smaller production site off Stirrup Creek Drive in Durham. In the coming months, he said the company plans to make a move to a 45,000-square-foot facility in Research Triangle Park, though the company has yet to sign the lease. In that space, he said they hope to house all manufacturing, general administration and financial operations – potentially moving R&D from the downtown facility, though no decision has been made. Build-out for the facility will be done in stages over the course of several years, but Fischer said he expects the total investment to come to about $10 million, with the company’s headcount expanding from 50 to 200 in the same timeframe. In 2019, he expects the staff to double.

Align Technology

Industry	New/Expanding	New Jobs	Investment	Date Submitted
Advanced Medical Technologies, Software/Information Technology, Other: Headquarters	Expanding	0	$58,100,000	04/10/2019

Notes

A California company that has been steadily growing in the Triangle has upped their investment in the region, spending $58.1 million to purchase its building with intent to continue expanding. The $58.1 million investment is the most recent indicator of the company's continued interest in the area. In the announcement regarding the office acquisition, the company noted it was planning to continue hiring in the region. The outright purchase of the building could suggest the scale of expansion the company is considering, but a company spokesperson said it is not currently disclosing details on expected growth. Align Technology, which is headquartered in San Jose, California but calls the Triangle home to its Americas region headquarters, announced the purchase of the office building it has been residing in off Slater Road.

AskBio

Industry	New/Expanding	New Jobs	Investment	Date Submitted
Advanced Manufacturing, Biotechnology/Pharmaceuticals , Other: Headquarters	Expanding	153	$0	04/12/2019

Notes

AskBio has been quietly operating in Research Triangle Park since 2001, but the company is making a big bet with a $235 million investment – moving from a revenue positive company to burning capital to bring a multitude of therapeutics onto the market. That strategy has the company shopping for a RTP-based manufacturing site that it hopes to fill with more than 100 new employees. Mikhail says the company is also planning to expand its R&D and administrative staff, more than doubling its headcount from 47 to 100 in the next 18 months.

PrecisionHawk

Industry	New/Expanding	New Jobs	Investment	Date Submitted
Software/Information Technology, Other: Headquarters	Expanding	250	$0	04/15/2019

Notes

A fast-growing drone technology company has tapped downtown Raleigh for its new headquarters – a move that means more jobs on the Glenwood South section of downtown Raleigh. PrecisionHawk, currently operating from administrative offices on Six Forks Road, has tapped the space above Raleigh’s Milk Bar for its new operation, confirms CEO Michael Chasen. At the new location, the company, which has hired 100 people in the first quarter alone, will grow its headcount to “north of 350” by the end of the year, taking advantage of the fast-moving drone industry that, thanks to new FAA permissions. Right now, PrecisionHawk’s global population is about 250, and Chasen estimates PrecisionHawk being at 300 “in the next two months.”

AdvisorEngine

Industry	New/Expanding	New Jobs	Investment	Date Submitted
Financial Services, Software/Information Technology	Expanding	18	$0	04/18/2019

Notes

A New York-based fintech is hiring in Raleigh. AdvisorEngine, the parent of Raleigh-based Junxure, has 60 employees in the Triangle. And a top executive says the plan is to grow the headcount 30 percent in the next 18 to 24 months. AdvisorEngine’s business tries to combine new technologies with “the human connection,” he explains. Its software is designed to help financial advisers serve more people, more efficiently.

Notes

Two new offices are also being launched, in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, and in Raleigh, North Carolina in the US. Ideagen’s Kuala Lumpa site will become a technology-focused CoE, with 70 new roles being created initially, while the company’s new Raleigh office will create 12 new jobs in the first phase of the project. Meanwhile, Raleigh will become the US-arm of Ideagen, replicating the company’s global operations housing sales, marketing, finance, technology, support and customer success teams serving the US market.

Heapy

Industry	New/Expanding	New Jobs	Investment	Date Submitted
Other: Engineering	New	30	$0	05/07/2019

Notes

Heapy, an Ohio-based professional consulting firm whose real estate projects have included hotels and university buildings, has tapped Raleigh over Nashville and Orlando for a new hub.

For Heapy principal Doug Sales, the new office – to be located at the top floor of downtown’s One Glenwood Building – promises to be “an adventure.” Sales, having lived most of his life in Ohio, is moving to Raleigh at the end of May to lead the local office. The goal is to grow to an office of 30 people initially. Already, Heapy has hired one person locally, and is looking to add others to its employment roster. And some of its current employees in other locations will be given transfer opportunities. The new office will eventually provide all of Heapy’s existing services.

Other: Engineering	Expanding	20	$0	05/30/2019

Notes

Boosted by projects such as “Complete 540,” a Pennsylvania-based engineering firm is growing in Raleigh. Quietly, Gannett Fleming has grown from about eight employees in the city to more than 140. And, having just taken over the entire ninth floor of downtown Raleigh’s One Glenwood, there’s room for even more growth, says regional director Terry Snow in an interview. “It seems like we’re adding employees daily,” he says. “And we intend to grow. We intend to add at least 20 new staff people per year.” And he hopes to actually increase that to 40, depending on talent availability.

Pryon

Software/Information Technology	Expanding	25	$0	06/11/2019

Notes

A startup with bold ambitions, big backers and an Amazon (Nasdaq: AMZN) pedigree is looking for a “marquis” headquarters location in Raleigh as it doubles down on artificial intelligence. He sees a $1.7 trillion (“Yes, that’s trillion,” he reiterates) market for the company, which develops augmented intelligence for the enterprise. Igor Jablov, CEO of Raleigh’s Pryon, doesn’t mince words about his bold vision for his new startup’s future. And he sees his 20-person firm (including half a dozen employees in Raleigh) as making a major dent with a technology “unlike anything that’s out there.”

It’s currently evaluating its options for at least 10,000-square-foot of space, Jablov says, noting North Hills, downtown Raleigh and Research Triangle Park as possibilities. The goal is to grow to about 40 to 50 people in a year, with about half in Raleigh.

Fast-growing D.C. digital firm relocates HQ to Raleigh, plans to increase hiring. An up-and-coming firm has decided to relocate its headquarters to Raleigh, bringing more jobs to the region. Go Fish Digital, a marketing agency with big-name clients like GEICO, United Way, and Adobe, has moved from Washington, D.C. to the Oak City. The startup has set up shop in an 11,000-square-foot office space on 227 Fayetteville Street. As part of its relocation, the firm has scaled up its workforce by almost 50 percent — from 25 to 39 employees, with 14 new hires. It has also added jobs to the local economy with its employee relocation. “We plan to scale to more than 100 employees over the next four years and our new office space is a key part of that,” Russell said. “Most of these new hires will be entry-level with entry-level salaries, and a big reason why the local universities are so important. But we will still be on the hunt for more experienced leaders and managers as we grow.”

Notes

Merz, a global leader in the field of aesthetics and neurotoxins, today announced plans to reorganize into three independently operating businesses: medical aesthetics, therapeutics and consumer care. Under this structure, Merz Aesthetics will be the largest dedicated medical aesthetics business globally. The reorganization was announced as Merz reported the completion of another year of strong business performance across all regions, exceeding fiscal year 2018/19 revenue targets. Merz's global revenue growth of 6.8 percent was driven in part by 17 percent year-over-year growth in the aesthetics business.

CloudFactory

Industry	New/Expanding	New Jobs	Investment	Date Submitted
Software/Information Technology	Expanding	45	$0	11/20/2019

Notes

With fresh funding in hand, CloudFactory is ready to expand. The company just closed on a $65 million “growth equity” funder, positioning the firm to double its Triangle headcount. That's according to CEO Mark Sears, who says the cash will be used to fuel growth. To really expand the market reach, CloudFactory will have to increase its team. Already, it's opened an office in Raleigh. It has 45 employees combined in Durham and Raleigh. Sears sees that presence “doubling” over the next three years. And, as the firm expands that go-to-market team, other hubs across its footprint will also expand, he says.

Notes

Many shooting ranges in the United States can often appear like just an extension of a gun store. Not anymore. A Raleigh-based startup called OnPoint is looking to bring a new kind of high-tech, activity-based shooting center to the Oak City soon. And unlike traditional ranges, they argue, it's one where women and young adults will feel welcome. "We're re-inventing the range experience using innovative technology and by creating an open and engaging facility and community culture," OnPoint CEO's Houck Reed said. "We incorporate movement and immersive gamification technology to make OnPoint instruction and experiences the most engaging offerings you'll find anywhere."
